Crash

A two-year-old girl remains unconscious (as of press time) in University hospital in Edmonton following this two vehicle accident at the junction of Highways 16 and 22 near Ennisville. The accident took place at about 10:17 a.m. last Thursday and sent the driver of the van from Gainford and her daughter to hospital by helicopter. The accident is still under investigation by Evansburg RCMP. Sgt. Garry Kirwan said the driver was trapped in the van for about 30 minutes while they used a crane to lift the truck off the van. The crane and the helicopter, used to transport the injured to hospital, were from the nearby construction site. Sgt. Kirwan said he would like to commend Peter Kiewit Construction and their men for their actions in helping at the accident site.

Two killed in head-on

A two vehicle accident north of Evansburg last Wednesday claimed the lives of two people.

Kenneth Thomas Mason, 41 of Mayerthorpe and Jean Bauer, 30 of Evansburg, the drivers of the vehicles were both killed in the head-on collision at about 6:15 p.m. last Wednesday. The fatal crash happened about 24 kilometres north of Evansburg and one kilometre west on a gravel road.

The accident is still under investigation.

Amoco gives funds to complex

The proposed Drayton Valley community centre got a big boost from Amoco last Thursday.

District superintendent Wayne Heth presented a cheque for $10,000 to Community Centre Society chairman George Bergquist and town Councillor Charlie Miner. Joe MacLellan, secretary of the Community Centre Society was also present at the cheque presentation.

Heth told the group the $10,000 represented Amoco's initial contribution, and as the community centre developed, further contributions would likely be forthcoming.

He stated this was Amoco's way of showing their interest in the community.

They're a great corporate citizen," an elated Bergquist explained.

Bergquist's hopes that others will follow Amoco's lead.

Bergquist also felt the three-year time line Amoco outlined in their letter was very reasonable.

He was also pleased Councillor Miner participated in the presentation and that the town and his committee could work together toward a community centre.

"I really appreciate this. The rest of the council will agree," Miner stated. "Amoco has always been a good corporate citizen," the veteran town councillor added.

Miner was making reference to Amoco's $75,000 contribution to the construction of the Park Valley swimming pool.

tion of the Park Valley swimming pool.

As far as the 1989 time line set by Amoco, Miner said, "I don't have any problem with that condition. It has to be phased in and it has to be affordable."

Miner also felt the three-year time line wouldn't put any extra pressure on the town. And, he felt the three years would be plenty of time to get plans and financing in place.

MacLellan, one of 15 local residents who volunteered to sit on the Community Centre Society last year, was also extremely pleased with Amoco's donation.

"It's very encouraging. It shows a real commitment to the community," he stated.

It was a dream come true for Stella St. Laurent.

The 61-year-old Drayton Valley resident who has lived at the Shangri La Lodge for the past eight years, was almost speechless last Thursday afternoon when she took possession of a new wheelchair.

She's extremely grateful to the Drayton Valley Lions Club and Gail Biedler. Both of them were instrumental in seeing the dream come true.

Biedler, a volunteer at the Shangri La Lodge and a friend, started making phone calls two weeks ago to see what funding was available for a new wheelchair for St. Laurent.

She made calls to local organizations (including social services and the health unit), Edmonton and to MLA Shirley Cripps. "I was looking to see what was available," Biedler explained.

"No one turned me down, but many of the groups had to make my request to a meeting. When I talked to Alex Salfi of the Lions, they had a meeting that night," she added.

Biedler appeared before the Lions, made a presentation, and they called back that same night to say they would buy the chair.

Her first reaction to the news was shock. Then, she added, it wasn't really a shock knowing the work the Lions do in the community.

Lions club president Glen Bowen and members

Sheldon Fuson and Salfi were at the Shangri La Lodge last Thursday when Mark Christopherson of Eco Medical in Edmonton delivered the chair.

St. Laurent wheeled her new chair around the lodge, then bundled up in a coat and headed outdoors. Then back inside to see how it would fit into her room.

Daughter Pauline St. Laurent also shared in her mother's excitement.

"We're really grateful to the Lions. We couldn't afford the wheelchair ourselves," she stated.

And she didn't forget the behind-the-scenes work of Biedler. "We're grateful to Gail. She made all the calls," she added.

The addition of the new wheelchair will give the Shangri La Lodge resident more chances to get out. Biedler says her old chair, that ran up repair bills totaling more than $700 lately, kept breaking down. Now, she will feel more secure going on trips.

The wheelchair, which cost a little more than $5,000 includes an electric braking system, variable speed control, is powered by two 12-volt batteries and won't have any trouble climbing over a two-by-four.

After Christopherson had gone over the operator's manual, St. Laurent said, "It's unbelievable." The sales manager for Eco Medical wished her "happy motoring."

Donation

Amoco's district superintendent Wayne Heth presents a cheque for $10,000 to Community Centre chairman George Berquist as town

Councillor Charlie Miner and society secretary Joe MacLellan look on. The $10,000 donation is just the "initial" payment.

Opinions

"Danger zones" are a concern in town

Now that winter is here, special care is needed by pedestrians and motorists alike.

There are several "danger zones" in town that we have to live with. Namely, on 50th Street in front of the Eldorado school and in front of Elementary B and H.W. Pickup schools.

Cars park everywhere on 50th Street in front of Eldorado, and the kids seem to cross wherever mom or dad drop them off. Parents should take a little more care in letting the kids off near the crosswalks. And, at the same time, if parents wouldn't park with their vehicles almost on top of the crosswalks, traffic coming up and down the street could see the kids before they step out from behind a vehicle, and have to slam on their brakes, while getting a cold stare from the parents.

The situation on 50th Street is extremely bad when it gets cold and motorists leave their cars running. All that exhaust makes it hard to see.

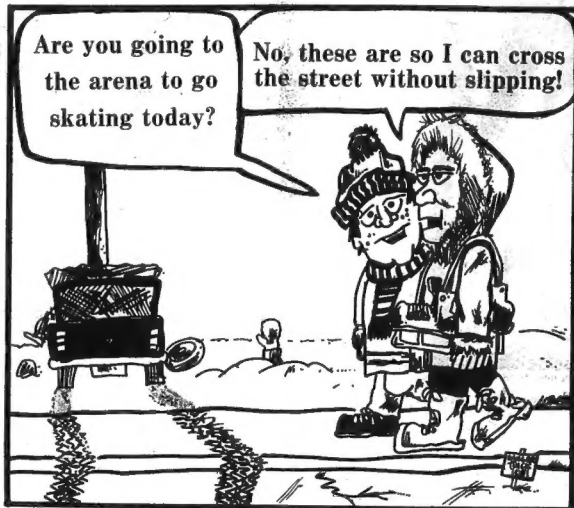

And, if the school buses coming and going wasn't enough, motorists should heed the law and not hold up traffic because they want to cross a solid line to enter the school yard, where they're not supposed to enter anyway.

Vehicles parked everywhere and kids running in and out of traffic is also the scene by Elementary B and H.W. Pickup. If parents want to drop off, or pick up their kids, they should find a place where they might not cause an accident. People who live along there don't make it any easier by parking their vehicles along the curb. But realize, they probably don't have a back lane access or driveway.

School patrols are provided at Elementary B, but it has to be frustrating for them when kids, sometimes much older, just come and go as they please.

The arrival of Old Man Winter, the cold, snow and icy streets means a better understanding of safety for all of us.

Sturdi Wood plant

Trailer court evidence of new people

It was obvious last weekend that the golfing season was over, so we packed the clubs away.

For the first time in 15 years, I got the clubs out this summer and played a half-dozen rounds. Three of these were during summer holidays at Sylvan Lake, two at Drayton Valley and another at Seba Beach.

One hole that's hard to forget is the ninth at Drayton Valley. There's just something about the water that throws me off my game.

One day, when I arrived at the ninth hole, I made up my mind to blast that orange ball across the water. Instead I sliced it to the right, it hit a tree and bounced back out on the fairway, this side of the water. What a shot. Now, all I had to do was clip it over the chuck. But instead, I skipped the ball across and into the deep grass.

That had to be my lucky day, as I got over the water without losing a ball, and besides recovering my ball in the deep grass, found two other balls.

Before next golf season, I plan to take a few brush up lessons. Then look out.

Residential construction (houses, garages and alterations) accounted for $3,171,800 for the first nine months of the year.

The 12-month figure a year ago was $3,995,385.

It's encouraging to see all this building.

If you were wondering about new people coming into the area to work at the Sturdi Wood strandboard plant, or other jobs, look no further than the Pleasant View Mobile Home Park south on 50th Street.

At last count 21 mobile homes had moved in, with most of those folks coming here from other places. Most of them admitted that they didn't realize there was a housing/rental shortage in Drayton Valley. And, they're thankful there was a mobile home park they could move into.

Steady growth in patch - ERCB

A recently published two-volume report on the outlook of the energy industry is calling for "steady economic growth" in the future.

The report, put out by the Energy Resources Conservation Board (ERCB), assesses the province's energy requirements over the next 25 years. The report concludes the next "few years are subject to some economic slowdown and great uncertain-ainties." The Energy Requirements report goes on to say the overall picture is one of steady economic growth.

In a release from the ERCB the projected growth is labelled as "lower than Alberta has experienced during the last 15 years."

"International prices for crude oil, stated in 1985 dollars, are assumed, for the low case to increase slowly from the current level of $17 (US) by 1990, while high case price will increase to $24 (US)," the release says.

"Despite the lower outlook for energy prices, the ERCB expects users of energy to continue making improvements in energy use efficiency."

Copies of the ERCB's "Energy Requirements Report" are available from the ERCB Maps and Publications Counter, 640 5th Ave. S.W., Calgary, Alberta. Cost for the two-volume set is $35.00.

Jim Holmgren
Lindale

'Still bussing'

By Gary Logie

When it comes to school buses around Lindale, one name instantly comes to mind — Holmgren.

That's because for the past 34 years Jim Holmgren has been driving the area's children from and to school.

In one family's case he has ensured the safety of three generations.

And it all began when Holmgren was attending the North End School back in 1952 when his father got the contract from the old Leduc School Division.

"Dad got the contract, but he was working in the lumber camps around Drayton Valley, so I started to drive. Nobody else wanted it because of the low pay" ($84-a-month), he said.

His first bus had lots of horse-power too, he remembers, two horses that is.

Holmgren smiles as he recalls picking up the 12-15 (including himself) regular passengers in the horse-drawn wagon that served as the area's first school bus.

"It wasn't all that bad," he said, "the wagon was covered in the winter and we had a little wood-burning stove inside that kept it warm."

"And the faster the horses, the better," he chuckles.

Then a year later, "I got my driver's licence and got promoted to a used 1951 one-ton panel truck they classified as a school bus."

He drove that bus up until 1957 when the school system bought a new panel truck, but by that time the lumber camps had slowed down and his father was back. "So dad did the driving and I just spared for him for a while," Jim said.

However, Holmgren's bus driving days were far from over. By 1965 he had purchased his own bus and had picked up a regular route again.

As history repeats, so did his driving life.

Around 1971 "I was back to square one and had bought my dad's bus and was using it," he said.

Over the years, he received countless awards and pins for his safe driving record.

The one accident he did have that was his fault occurred early in his career. "It was with the '51 panel truck," he said, "you had to crank it to start it and one morning I went out to start it up, but forgot to take it out of gear."

By the time he remembered he was pinned between the garage's back wall and the front of the truck.

"It was a good thing my mother noticed the bus hadn't come out of the garage." The truck had stalled and Jim was unable to free himself till his mom pushed in the clutch releasing the transmission and allowing him to push it back.

Other than going in the ditch a couple times and being rear-ended at the intersection of highways 22 and 39, Holmgren has had a relatively accident-free career.

His problems with the children are equally minimal. "I find the best way to handle them is to not get too familiar with them. It's just easier to handle them that way," he said.

There have been a couple problems over the last three decades — like the boy who gave Jim the "finger" from another bus.

"I just passed the other bus, got the driver to stop and told him to give me that boy. We had a little talk and solved the problem. The kids I've given heck to treat me really good now."

The same goes if there is a consistent problem, he handles it himself.

"I just go see the parents and sit down with them and the children and talk it out."

In October the veteran school bus driver received a gold pocket watch for long service, but it sounds like he should have gotten one for diplomacy, too.

Amnesty Days

Overdue problem at library

By Gary Logie

Drayton Valley's library's overdue book problems are getting worse in stead of better.

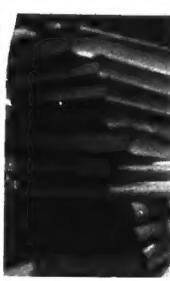

During their recent amnesty days, when people could return overdue books without fear of reprisal, "response was less than in previous times," said librarian Lois Peterson.

It was not what we expected and we do have a number of chronic problems in that area. Not many people took the opportunity to, pardon the pun, clear the books on their overdues," she said.

They did receive one book back that was a year late and would have resulted in a fine in excess of $90, "but we were just glad to get it back," said Peterson.

But, the problem continues to worsen.

"People are tending to let their overdues slide and that creates a shortage of time to handle other administrative duties.

"Patrons are relying too much on being reminded by staff. It takes about a day-a week on the average," she said.

"Off the top of my head I'd say it's the adults who are setting the pace for their children as chronic offenders. Of the problems we have, 90 per cent of them are adults."

Under the present policy, offenders receive four written or verbal notices. It is turned over to a collection agency and forwarded to the Credit Association of Canada, affecting their credit ratings.

"If the trend continues we'll be forced to recommend policy changes to the board on chronic offenders," she said.

The changes could involve restricting their borrowing privileges or, as a last resort, suspending their memberships, she said.

"People should realize we're between a rock and a hard place trying to cope with an increase in memberships and a backlog in overdue books. We're facing having to institute a get-tough policy."

Alcohol is target of drug week

It's another battle. A battle in the war. The war against drugs. From November 16 to 22 Drug Awareness Week has been declared in Drayton Valley. Carol Robertson Baker, from the local Alberta Alcohol and Drug Abuse Commission (AADAC) office, says the event is just "starting to build."

"It will be even bigger next year," Baker says of the national week aimed at curbing drug use.

"It was on a smaller scale last year here but it's getting bigger and bigger every year," she explained. Locally, one of the biggest 'drug' concerns is alcohol and Baker says it is their number one target.

"We especially see a big increase in it (alcohol abuse) around Christmas and right after Christmas," she explains.

In the effort to combat alcohol and drug abuse Baker says AADAC will be taking the fight to the schools and to the general public.

"We have two open (sessions) to the public," she says about programs during Drug Awareness Week. On November 17 at 7 p.m. at the local AADAC office they will be dealing with "alcohol use and health," the theme in Alberta's week-long campaign.

The second program goes November 20 when AADAC representatives will be demonstrating how to make non-alcoholic drinks. "We'll have recipes and samples," Baker said about the program which also gets underway at 7 p.m.

Baker said about the campaign.

Some of the items donated range from food vouchers for car cleaning to welding services to a side of beef.

The auction will be run by Laurence Fischer, who has donated his time to helping raise the $2,000 goal, said Tryon.

The school association will also be running a food stand, but doesn't expect to make any money towards the bus from it.

They also wish to extend thanks to all the people and businesses who donated time and goods to the auction.

Lindale

Donations coming in Donations are rolling in for the upcoming Lindale auction Nov. 22.

The Lindale School Association is holding the auction at the Carnwood Community Hall at 11 a.m. in hopes of raising enough money to help pay for the new 66 seat bus they purchased.

The bus will be used by community groups and the school for outings from skiing to emergency school bus use, said Mae Tryon.

After a slow start on donations the auction was postponed once but will go on Nov. 22 regardless, she said.

Superintendent gives lessons to group

The Eldorado School Parents Association got a lesson in teacher/pupil ratios last week.

The presentation was made by Dr. LeRoy Sloan, assistant superintendent of educational services with the County of Parkland.

Sloan indicated that a lot of research had been done in teacher/pupil ratio, with no real definite conclusions.

"Our (the County of Parkland) formula are somewhat different," Sloan told the parents' group.

Five-and-a-half years ago ANA did a study on class sizes and found that in almost every category, the county was in the middle.

The classroom grouping used by the county calls for 20 to 25 students in Grade 1 and 20 to 30 in grades 2 through 12.

At Eldorado, Grade 1 classes range in size from a low of 19 to a high of 25. In Grade 2 the spread is 22 to 26 and in Grade 3 the school has two classes of 29 and two of 30 students.

Last year, schools in Drayton Valley had an average class size of 19.50. This compared to 19.51 in Stony Plain and 19.38 in Spruce Grove.

Sloan told the parents the county was very concerned about school enrollments in Drayton Valley this year, as early as April of last year. This arose as a result of several major layoffs and the new Sturdi Wood strand-board plant.

The assistant superintendent says calls were made to the companies involved, to see how many school-age children were involved.

All the work the county did seems to have paid off, as Sloan reports only minimal changes in the expected enrollments.

During a question and answer period that followed the presentation, Sloan was asked about teacher aides. He said the county has applied for 20 aides through the PEP grant, but still don't have the go ahead to do any hiring.

Sloan also cautioned the people about increasing costs. "We're in a tight situation. It could get worse," he stated.

He urged parents to call their MLA and voice their concerns over educational funding. If funding is not available through government grants, Sloan said the other alternative was to increase taxes.

Correction on Sturdi Wood

The new sawmill, mentioned in a front page story last week, is being built at the Sturdi Wood strandboard site, which is southwest of town, not northwest as the story indicated.

ANA Seatbelt lobby?

The Drayton Valley General Hospital will be well represented at the Alberta Hospital Association (AHA) convention Nov. 26-28 in Edmonton.

Executive director Jim Hansen, along with board member Arnold Jorgensen, vice-chairman Henry Rondeau and board member Morris McCullagh will attend.

Mandatory seat belts will be one of the many items discussed at the convention. The Innisfail General and Auxiliary Hospital wants the AHA to lobby government to encourage use of seatbelts through educational programs and the media.

The Mayerthorpe General Hospital will also be asking the AHA to develop a more equitable system for attracting physicians to rural areas than the existing incentive program.

TransAlta

Pasula is transferred

Merv Pasula is going home.

Pasula, a resident of Drayton Valley for the past eight years has been transferred by TransAlta Utilities to Camrose.

The area foreman for TransAlta will be going to Camrose as division rural supervisor, responsible for the area from Winfield to Provost.

It will be like going home for the Pasulas, as both their parents live in Camrose.

"We have mixed emotions about leaving Drayton Valley, but our folks are there, and that was something we had to consider," the 28-year TransAlta employee stated.

The new job starts December 1st but the Pasulas are not expected to move until the new year.

During his eight years in Drayton Valley, Pasula was instrumental in getting the Pembina Educational Consortium and the Knights of Columbus started, served three years on the Chamber of

Close to $10 million

Permits are piling up

Building permits inched close to the $10 million dollar mark last month in Drayton Valley.

Town manager Manny Deol reports building figures last month totalled $1,553,900 pushing the 10-month mark to $9,932,800. Last month's total shows a sharp improvement over October of '85 when permits totalled $514,456.

The major reason for the increase last month is reflected in the $1.5 million Sturdi Wood strandboard plant. The total also included $9,500 in residential construction, $7,000 for industrial and another $7,000 for institutional and government.

The 10-month total a year ago was $5,181,340.

The last time local building permits topped $10 million was in '82 when the final figure was $18,795,411. Most of that was due to the new hospital. Six years ago permits for 12 months were $10,161,878.

Olympic dreams

By Lorne Christensen

Bill Campbell and Dana O'Hearn are making tracks. Tracks which could lead to the Olympics.

The two 16-year-old students from Breton high school are both avid in the biathlon. A sport invented by the army combining cross country skiing and target shooting.

Both dream of someday competing in the Olympics in this demanding sport.

And both Bill and Dana started the sport two years ago through cadets. And both are excellent.

In last year's Alberta championships Dana won the gold medal while Bill captured a gold in this summer's biathlon championships.

While success in the relatively unknown sport is coming quickly, it's not without cost.

Rifles worth $1,500, skis at $300, boots near $200, poles from $100 to $300 and the list of equipment goes on. Then the shells, $1 to $5 for practice shells and almost $9 for competition shells.

"It's quite expensive," says Bill.

"It would be nice if we had some help," he added.

Dana points out "you have to be pretty sure before you go and buy the stuff."

Additional costs include special "roller-skis" so they can train during the summer.

Training is a big part of the success the two have so far enjoyed.

"We do running or work on the roller skis," says Dana.

"You ski as much as you can when the snow comes and shoot whenever," she adds about the training. The Grade 11 student says they work about 30 minutes a day on different exercises and peak at eight hours of workouts a week.

"Everything is on our own," she adds.

Both say they enjoy the sport because it's more of a "challenge" than cross country skiing and "more exercise" than downhill.

"I have more fun skiing up the hill," Bill laughs.

But skiing is only half the sport.

The rest comes in the skill of shooting.

"You can shoot bad if you ski fast," Dana explains, pointing out you can make up time if you have problems. The reverse also works. If you ski slow and shoot well, you'll still do all right.

The course lengths and number of shots vary with the girls and the boys. In boys' sprint they ski 7.5 kilometres and stop twice to shoot. In the individual event they ski 10 kilometres and stop three times to shoot and for the relay it's five kilometres skiing and stopping twice to shoot. Girls ski five kilometres in sprint, shoot twice; 7.5 kilometres in individual and shoot twice and four kilometres in relay, shooting twice.

This year the two will compete in several races in cluding the Alberta Cup series and will ski probably every weekend.

Last week Bill left for a stint in Kelowna at a special camp to improve his abilities. Sponsored by the Alberta Sport Council, the Grade 10 student gets most of his expenses picked up in training with the Alberta team.

With snow and the biathlon season just around the corner Bill and Dana are getting ready for another season of making tracks.

They both have plans to head to the national team trials in the new year and are both looking ahead to the Alberta Winter Games.

By 1992 they hope to be making tracks to the Winter Olympics.

Undefeated Devils bombard Barrhead

A short-handed Drayton Valley Devil squad romped to a 13-2 win over the Barrhead Elks last Friday night.

The Devils, with a perfect 6-0 record, will try to keep their undefeated record in track this Saturday night at 8:30 p.m. when they host Barrhead and Sunday when they travel to Spruce Grove. The Sunday game was originally booked for Grey Cup day.

With 10 skaters and two goaltenders, the Devils jumped into a 4-0 first period lead and led 10-1 after 40 minutes.

"We did really good, we only went down with 12 players," said co-coach Preston Yachimec.

Blair Shimbashi led the charge with three goals. Chad Allen, Robin Cockwill and Trent Pankiewicz had two each. Darren Fedorus, Rod Poppenroth, Grant McGinn and Kevin Hutchinson notched singles. McGinn and Fedorus also collected four assists each with Hutchinson earning three helpers.

Danny Carefoot

Forty-eight penalties were called, 26 of those to the host Elks, who were burned for six Drayton Valley power play goals including three in the opening period.

Danny Carefoot, playing his first game of the season, drew praise from manager Harvey Allen. Besides facing 41 shots, Carefoot also stopped a penalty shot.

While the game kept the Devils' unbeaten streak in tact, coach Yachimec said it is "a little early" to think about going unbeaten through the season. The only team the Devils haven't faced in the league is Rimby and they fell in overtime to Spruce Grove recently. The Devils handily beat Spruce Grove in their last meeting.

Hutzel heading to California for coaches' clinic

By Lorne Christensen
Baseball fever in January?
Seems odd, doesn't it?
Not for Drayton Valley's Ed Hutzel.

Hutzel has been selected to represent Team Alberta at a coaches' camp in San Diego, California in January.

Hutzel, well known locally for his work with the bantam baseball team over the past two years, was selected by Baseball Alberta to attend the five-day camp.

"I was surprised," Hutzel said about the honor. He'll be the only amateur coach in Alberta to go to the camp.

"I know I'll be rubbing shoulders with up and coming pro coaches," he added. The pro-instructed clinic is something Hutzel is looking forward to.

"It's been 20 years as a volunteer"

"I'll come back with a few things hopefully, it's the perfect thing," he added.

Hutzel will leave for the clinic on January 4 and return five days later from the sun. But it will be mostly work as sessions are scheduled from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily during the intense learning camp.

"I'll pass it on and some day they'll be able to pass it on," says Hutzel with the knowledge he'll pick up.

The honor to go to the camp came after Hutzel was awarded the J. Percy Page Recreation Award by the provincial government. The fund is designed to en courage "Albertans to continue their education or training."

Hutzel's credentials speak for themselves.

He helped coach the local bantam boys baseball team to a provincial championship and silver medal in the Western Canadians and was instrumental in the successful hosting of the Western Canadians during the last year. Before that Hutzel started coaching in 1967 with pee wee football and a senior ball team; since 1967 he has been involved every year in coaching, umpiring or refereeing.

"It's been 20 years as a volunteer," he added, saying he has enjoyed every minute of it.

"It hasn't been work," he explained.

But Hutzel is quick to credit the players for his opportunity to go south.

"The local bantam boys did it for me; I just happened to be the coach," he explains.

And now his efforts and the boys' efforts are being rewarded.

"I'm hoping other coaches can see this can happen to them too," he added.

"I hope to come back from California with knowledge in my head and some literature," Hutzel explained, pointing out he will be looking at holding local coaches' clinics.

But his work with Baseball Alberta won't be over once the clinic is finished.

Hutzel has been asked to work with the team every weekend from January to April at their indoor training sessions in Edmonton.

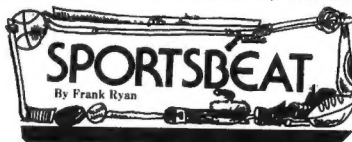

"I'll be learning and getting into their system," he added.

Once spring rolls around and the players can move outside, Hutzel will be hitting the field in Drayton Valley as coach of the midget team.

"I can't do both," he says about the local job and the Team Alberta work.

Then as the summer progresses Hutzel will work with Baseball Alberta at their selection camps for budding young players.

"There is a lot of talent out here," he adds.

While the Drayton Valley Devils continue to win on the ice, it hasn't been all that easy on the sidelines.

President Morris Seiferling, manager Harvey Allen and co-coaches Preston Yachimec and Conley Dunham are hard pressed to raise operating funds.

Letters were circulated to the business community last month, seeking some financial support. It's been slow coming in, to say the least.

One of their significant contributions was $2,000 from the Royal Canadian Legion. This is half of what the club received from the Legion last winter.

Seiferling, who approached the Legion executive for the funds, says it wasn't easy this time round. He took a lot of heat over the 'goon' and 'fighting' image that follows junior hockey.

That image is not only in Drayton Valley. It seems to be a tradition with junior hockey. We just hear more about it because our team is involved.

Instead of putting down the Devils because of the rough style of play that is evident in junior hockey, the community should be thanking people like Dunham, Yachimec, Allen and Seiferling for the job they are trying to do.

If these four men hadn't stepped forward this year, Drayton Valley may have found themselves without a junior team. Some people say they don't care. But, think what these young people might be doing if their time wasn't occupied playing hockey.

If you're concerned about the 'youth' in this community, be thankful that we have a junior team. And, if it's possible, they could use your financial support. If you can't give them a donation, your attendance at their home games would be a big help.

Now, for one of our fearless predictions.
The Winnipeg Blue Bombers should win the Grey Cup. Edmonton would be a long shot, but they will have to play better than a recent 16-16 tie with Ottawa. Maybe it's time to give Damon Allen a starting assignment. What do you think Jackie?

Tidbits - The question of a multiplex facility for Barhead has been rejected. The question, which was put to the voters during the recent municipal elections, saw 1,516 vote no and 857 for. Spike Owen, the Boston Red Sox shortstop, played for the U.S. team in the '81 Intercontinental Cup in Edmonton. The DV Gynastic Club will hold a gym-a-thon on Saturday, Nov. 15 in the gym building behind the H.W. Pickup school. Team Canada will play the West German National team on Nov. 23 in Red Deer.

In round robin play, Stony Plain won a pair of games by lopsided scores as

Stoklossa scores his first goal in organized hockey

A 10-7 win over Leduc by Rose's Well Servicing Clippers gave them three wins in exhibition play heading into their league opener.

The club, made up of players from Drayton Valley and Warburg, finished the exhibition season with three wins, one tie and one loss.

In their game last week against Leduc, Derrick Polsfut and Jeff Risser led the way with two goals and one assist each. Other Rose goals came from Scott Kynoch, Dwayne Shannon, Carter Reich, Martin Stoklossa and Cory Blanchard. For Stoklossa the goal was especially sweet. It's the first time the former German resident has played organized hockey.

Earlier in the week Rose's recorded their second exhibition win with a 13-10 score over Wetaskiwin. Jeff Risser led the way with a three-goal and two assist performance while Greg Lemermeier, Aaron Fiveland and Derrick Polsfut each had two goals. Lemermeier also added three assists. Other goals came from David Smestad, Bill Scholser, Scott Kynoch and Carter Reich.

Rose's only loss of the exhibition season came against the Edmonton Braves as they were humbled 10-5. Jeff Risser was the only bright spot as he notched four goals with Greg Lemermeier adding the fifth Clipper marker.

The first win of the exhibition season for the Clippers came two weeks ago with an 8-4 decision over Stony Plain. Polsfut, David Wiseman and Clinton Sippola each had two goals to lead the Clippers. Singles came from Reich and Risser.

In earlier action Stony Plain and Rose's tied 6-6. Polsfut, Wiseman, Sheldon Joneson, Dwayne Shannon, Kynoch and Reich scored for the team. Roses scored three straight times in the third in settling for the tie.

The team began their North Central midge league play last Saturday.

Ski champ is making a name for herself

Karen Percy

Alberta Tourism Minister LeRoy Fjordbotten had words of praise and support for young adults across the province recently when he officially announced Karen Percy's participation in special activities designed to promote skiing and winter tourism in Alberta.

Fjordbotten said that as one of the province's most promising athletes, Percy represents a new generation of Albertans whose spirit and verve are a source of inspiration and pride to us all. He said the 20-year-old Canadian National Alpine Ski Team member has the potential for being top contender at the 1988 Olympic Winter Games. As such, her participation in Travel Alberta promotions is as appropriate as it is exciting.

"Among Alberta's current generation of dedicated young men and women there exists a reservoir of talent that is virtually without limit. The freshness of their outlook, the enthusiasm they bring to new situations, and the challenges they pursue with unrestrained joy remind us all that no matter what trials and tribulations we face along the way, our future looks bright. For evidence of that, we only have to look to shining examples like Karen Percy," Fjordbotten said.

"Born in Edmonton, and now a resident of Banff, Karen first took to the slopes at age five and began competing at 12. Today, she carries special distinction as a young woman whose downhill battles have taken her right to the top. In addition to a bevy of other achievements, she is Canada's reigning women's downhill ski champion and is making a name for herself internationally. Her ambition is to win the World Cup championship and I have no doubt she will do her personal best to make that goal a reality," the minister said.

Fjordbotten explained Percy will be participating with Travel Alberta in a number of special events and promotions as time goes on. She also is being featured in a series of radio and print advertisements that form part of the "Take an Alberta Break" campaign.

Amateur baseball

Award winner has umpired more than 100 tourneys

His name is Service and there couldn't be a more appropriate name for him. Murray Service, of Calgary, has a long and impressive record of "serving" amateur sport in Alberta.

In recognition of his significant contributions to amateur baseball, Service has been named the recipient of the 1986 Carling O'Keefe Award of Merit, the top in individual award in baseball in the province.

His selection was announced by Ron Hayter, of Edmonton, chairman of the award's board of trustees. The presentation was made by Bill Dart, regional sales manager for Carling O'Keefe Breweries Ltd., assisted by Larry LeBlanc, sales promotion representative.

He was selected from among 11 nominations for the prestigious award: Lorne Ross, St. Albert; Ray Williams, Calgary; Elmer Schielke, Provost; Ray Brown and Wally Footz, Edmonton; Nick Bochansky and Ben Dorval, Fort Saskatchewan; Doug Herbert, Stettler; Dr. Gerald Beckie, Taber and Michael Pawluk of Two Hills.

The Carling O'Keefe Award of Merit, introduced in 1986, recognizes persons whose conduct, dedication and activities have made a "valuable and lasting contribution to the development and betterment of amateur baseball," Hayter said. "Murray Service fits this description completely."

Service has been active in the support and promotion of amateur baseball since 1952. He has coached and umpired in all age categories, and he's umpired in more than 100 provincial, national and international playoffs and championships. He also was a top calibre hockey referee for 27 years, retiring after the 1979-80 season.

He was named the top umpire at the Canada Summer Games in Newfoundland in 1977, and received an Alberta Achievement Award in 1980 for his outstanding community contributions.

Service umpired in the Canadian Senior Championships in Regina in 1978; the Intercontinental Cup in Edmonton in 1981; the Canadian Junior finals in Niagara Falls in 1983 and in the 1984 World Youth Championships in Kindsley. He was in charge of Umpire Liaison when the Intercontinental Cup was held in Edmonton last year.

He was a volunteer umpire at eight Alberta Summer Games and has officiated in all the major leagues in the province — Sunburst, Calgary Poothills,

Pitching for tourneys

The Drayton Valley Minor Baseball Association want to host the beaver provincials next summer.

President Mickey McDowell says his group will also make application to Alberta Baseball, formerly the Alberta Baseball Association, to host either the bantam provincials or the interzones. And, serious consideration is being given to doing something about hosting a mosquito playoff.

McDowell along with George Bergquist, Ed Hutzal and Jack Hutchinson attended the recent provincial baseball meetings in Edmonton.

One of the major issues facing minor baseball in the province is the lack of funding. McDowell says that minor ball and little league will have to combine forces, because only one grant will be available as opposed to one for each group, which has been the case in past years.

The provincial meeting also heard a resolution suggesting that teams not be allowed any pickups. It was defeated 28-22. "No pickups would hurt a small town like us," McDowell stated.

Wally Footz of Edmonton is the new Alberta Baseball president and Scott Benny of Hinton is the Zone 5 director.

Hines will attempt to defend his title

When Clayton Hines climbs into the saddle tonight (Wednesday) he'll be trying to defend his Canadian saddle bronc title.

Hines and Iris Tuftin are the only two local competitors heading into tonight's opening performance at the Canadian Finals Rodeo.

It was almost a year ago exactly Hines claimed the Canadian saddle bronc title. And now, he'll try again on a familiar horse.

In last year's event Hines won the title after riding Vold Rodeo's Scarlett.

The local cowboy has drawn the same horse for Friday's performance. But before he can think about Friday Hines is faced with riding Miracle Whip (Wednesday) and Fool Loose (Thursday).

For local barrel racer Iris Tuftin things aren't quite as clearly set out. Tuftin will find out in the draw before each race when she'll be running.

Performances at the Canadian Finals start at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday and go at 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. on Saturday with the final round at 2 p.m. Sunday in Northlands Coliseum.

Dave Lundberg

Rookie councillor will be busy

Rookie councillor Dave Lundberg has drawn the most council appointments.

Lundberg has been appointed to seven committees. Tom McGee is next with six followed by Alex Salfi with four. Jean Saunders, Howard Olsen and Charlie Miner have three each.

Mayor Bob Mayhew sits on the development appeal board and is an ex-officio member to all boards and committees, which also allows him to vote.

Lundberg's main area of responsibility includes the ambulance services board, development appeal board, joint use committee (as the alternate), library board, Meridian Foundation, recreation and finance.

McGee, who topped the polls in the Oct. 20 municipal election returns as council's representative on the recreation board, joint use committee, the Edson Health Unit and the chamber's economic development committee. He is also on the development appeal board and the transportation committee.

Salfi, a former councillor, sits on the hospital board, regional sanitary landfill authority, municipal commission and the transportation committee.

Saunders' workload includes the economic development committee, the library board and the municipal planning commission.

Olsen returns to the transportation committee, the hospital board and sits on the ambulance services board.

Miner returns as chairman of the municipal planning commission, the Yellowhead Regional Planning Commission and is a member of the finance committee.

Councillors will share committee duties

Henry Rondeau and Maurice McCullagh don't have to worry about not having anything to do.

The two Drayton Valley area residents have been handed 12 committee appointments with the County of Parkland.

Besides all those duties, Rondeau has been appointed deputy reeve.

Because most of the county meetings are in Stony Plain, Rondeau says he's on the road at least three hours most days.

Meetings and conventions will take up most of his time for the next five weeks.

"I don't have many free days," he stated last week.

Rondeau, who is heading into his second term with the county, doesn't expect any extra pressure with the deputy reeve portfolio. He will assist Reeve Ron Pollock and will have some extra duties as a result of the appointment.

Rondeau and McCullagh, the former reeve, will sit on a number of committees together. These include the Drayton Valley Hospital Board, Drayton Valley and District Ambulance Authority, economic policy committee and the purchasing committee.

Some of Rondeau's other duties include Public Works labor management, municipal planning, West Central Health Unit and the Drayton Valley Landfill Authority. McCullagh's workload includes the Drayton Valley recreation board, the development appeal board, Yellowhead Regional Planning Commission and the County Police Commission.

Around the town

Only 180 children attended the town and Kinsmen's joint Halloween Hoopla at the Rec Plex.

This is down from the 188 total of last year.

Recreation director Calvin Bonfield is concerned about the response.

Former councillor Claire Carefoot attended the recent swearing-in of town council.

Corlette Delaney is the new coordinator with the Canada Manpower and Immigration office in Drayton Valley.

There's no reason, now, for people going to the town office on business to stand around waiting for a clerk. A new buzzer system has been installed, alerting the clerical staff as to when someone enters the front door.

The Chamber of Commerce has 10,000 Rigby buttons they would like to distribute. Any groups or teams travelling out of town are asked to call the chamber office at 542-7578.

Area farmers are discouraged by trends

By Gary Logie

The New Democrats' task force on the future of the family farm in Alberta is appropriately named.

The force, headed by Vegreville ND MLA Derek Fox, has the task of sorting through miles of paperwork gathered in its province-wide search, including their visit to Drayton Valley last Thursday.

The four member panel listened as area farmers explained their positions on the future of the family farm, along with problems they've been having with rising input costs, marketing, land use and erosion, and what the government can do to help.

Laurence Larson from Alder Flats told the board "this area has one of the most modern auction marts around and it could be one of the leading markets in Alberta," but the cost of raising herds has sky-rocketed, while the return on the herds dwindle.

He suggested regulatory measures to limit herd sizes, restricting foreign competition and expanding Canada's world markets as possible solutions.

He also feels the herds should be slaughtered where they're raised so that monopolistic meat packers can't control the price the farmers get.

Area farmer Greg Tischer said, despite harvesting one of the best crops around he is just able to meet his expenses.

He thinks a system should be set so "leading in situations have to ride it out with you. They should get the commodity, instead of the cash price and share the risk."

He also feels consumers should pay more for what they buy. "The consumer has to pay more for food because I can't afford to support them."

Tischer "sees an end to family farms and a move towards more corporate structuring of farming."

Norman Dunn, who has farmed in the area for 50 years also sees no light at the end of the tunnel and it's because of the oil industry.

"There's no incentive to stay on the farm anymore. I've said all along oil was a curse; they can pay better wages than anyone is going to make elsewhere."

"It's made millionaires of oil producers and paupers of farmers. We're asking for socialist reforms in a capitalist economy. In a free enterprise system, it's boom and bust and that's what we can expect. Trying to remodel the system is a lost cause."

Fox had to agree "there's certainly no magic solution other than input from organizations and individuals on the future of the industry. But our ambition is to develop a set of relative and forward looking policies on the problems in ND task force on agriculture visited Drayton Valley last Thursday to hear local views.

The task force is also receiving written briefs from anyone unable to attend the meetings. Results from the hearings should be out early next year, Fox said.

SCHOOL NOTEBOOK

Breton Elementary

Breton Elementary had fun last week as Alberta Culture's travelling museum dropped by Wednesday, giving them a glimpse of Alberta's flavorful history. Upcoming events at the school include a kindergarten pot-luck supper to be held Nov. 13 at 6 p.m. in the school.

Report cards will be distributed on Nov. 18, followed by parent/teacher interviews on Nov. 20 from 3:30 p.m. til 9 p.m. and again on the 21 from 9 a.m. til 12 noon.

St. Anthony's Students from Elementary B joined those from St. A's for a musical performance by percussionist Rick Todd on Monday. It was a loud, but fun, event.

St. A's students will be released from school at 2:15 p.m. today (Wednesday) as teachers have their monthly staff meetings.

Parents and children alike are reminded there will be no skating next Monday, so there's no need for skates that day.

A special treat for students this Friday will be a trip to Stony Plain's Multicultural Centre to see what Christmas in Germany is like.

H.W. Pickup

The junior high reports both their volleyball squads are on the winning track so far this year. They hope their luck continues through the girls' tournament in Spruce Grove on Nov. 22 and the boys when they venture to Duffield for a tournament on the 15th.

Elementary 'B'

It's a busy time at Elementary B today as they welcome renowned Canadian author Cora Taylor who visits to do some readings from several of her books.

Following Taylor's visit the children will be released at 2:15 p.m. today so the teachers can hold their monthly staff meeting.

Congratulations to Anita Melin who was chosen as October's student of the month.

Report cards went out on Monday and parent/teacher interviews will go Nov. 20, 21. The school asks parents to call and set-up a time for their appointments.

Eldorado

Students will be released at 2:15 p.m. today as teachers hold their monthly staff meetings.

They'll probably be discussing parent/teacher interviews which go tomorrow from 6 p.m. til 9 p.m. and all day Friday, with the exception of lunch hour from 12 noon til 1 p.m.

Parents are reminded Christmas is right around the corner and Eldorado is holding book sales both days of parent/teacher interviews. Hint, hint.

Lindale

Looks like late nights and no fun as the jr. high students prepare for exams today and tomorrow.

Good things will be happening for lunch at Lindale this month as the junior high students' union will be holding a hamburger sale Nov. 19, followed two weeks later by a hot dog sale from the Lindale playschool.

The weekend of Nov. 21, 22 could be good or bad depending on report cards which come out the 21st.

Saturday the 22nd will see the Lindale auction go at the Carnwood Community Hall starting at 11 a.m. Proceeds will go to help pay for the bus they bought.

Frank Maddock

Breakfast is the most important meal of the day, we're told, so the students' union decided to do their part in ensuring we get off to a good start this Friday with a 'Muffin Morning'.

Parents, teachers and Elementary B's Grade 6s will all be feasting on fresh, hot muffins that morning - so drop by, have breakfast and support the students' fund raising efforts. Breakfast will be served from 7:30 a.m. to 9 a.m. in the gym.

Comment on arches

Skunk in a rose bush

Nadine Davie

"The school should have spent their money on something more reasonable and better looking. They are supposed to be a new art (form), but it looks like the school isn't finished yet."

David Anderson

"They add color, but almost too much. They stick out like a skunk in a rose bush, but I don't mind them."

Kevin Carefoot

"I think it looks different and interesting, but it's not for us. They don't even match our school colors."

Michael Cookus

"It looks like a cross between MacDonalds and one of the churches in England. It's like you should be praying at a take-out window."

Hi mom

The Grade 6s from Elementary B school seem to be finding their new home in Frank Maddock high school's B wing quite satisfactory. The move has certainly not made this particular student any less shy as she makes sure she gets captured on film.

RCMP

Drunk drivers punished in local court

With the Christmas season approaching RCMP are warning motorists not to drink and drive. Evidence of that was obvious in provincial court last week.

Three local men were convicted on drinking and driving charges.

Dale Gordon Fink from Drayton Valley was fined $690 for 60 days in jail if payment defaulted after a motor vehicle accident on October 25. Fink was charged with driving over .08.

Richard Anthony Flamm, also of Drayton Valley, was sentenced to one month in jail after two charges. Flamm was charged with impaired driving and driving over .08 after an accident on September 11. Flamm blew a breathalyzer test. Flamm also was suspended from driving for one year.

Another Drayton Valley man was convicted in court of an offence near Lacombe. Murray Dale was fined $600 after being charged with driving over .08 in the October 19 incident.

Fund raising

Almond proceeds

By Mae Tryen

The Lindale School Association has been busy with fund raising ideas lately.

The auction will be Nov. 22 starting at 11 a.m. at the Carwood Community Centre.

The association is also selling chocolate coated almonds and two-year calendars. The proceeds will go toward the bus.

Congratulations to Russell and Thelma Gilchrist who celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary recently. They had a family supper followed by a dance.

The Lindale Hall Association will be holding their annual Seniors Night, Nov. 13 at 5:30 p.m. All seniors 50 and over are welcome to attend.

The volleyball season at the school is now over. The kids did quite well.

CNIB joins Jamie's fight

Progress is being made in Jamie Platz's fight with poor vision and cancer.

After losing the sight in his right eye last spring and deteriorating vision in his left, ways of helping the 11-year-old remain in school are being sought, said his mother and school officials.

The Canadian National Institute for the Blind (CNIB) visited Elementary B school last Wednesday to "assess the situation and set up ways of making it easier for him to continue learning," said Gail Platz.

The school's vice principal Chris Kelly said the CNIB "will be advising us on how to make it easier for him to keep as much independence as possible." Something Jamie strives for continually, said his mother.

One of the ways will be instructions on a braille typewriter and "the CNIB will continue to come out and advise teachers on an on-going basis," said Kelly.

They will also concentrate on teaching him through oral methods, they said.

Another possibility could be his mother taking a braille course through Grant MacEwan Community College in Edmonton. But that depends on whether the course will be set up.

If it is, it would be a great asset to her as she said it would help her assist Jamie with his work.

He also will only be at tending school half-days as currently his cancer treatment causes side-effects that force him to be bedridden for up to half the day, said Kelly.

ASTAR® is capturing the attention of children!

The War Amputations of Canada's friendly robot from planet DANGER appears on television with a warning for youngsters "You're in a dangerous world, so PLAYSAFE."

Josee, a member of the Child Amputee (CHAMP) Program, is one good reason why The War Amps must reach the very young with the PLAYSAFE message. A month before Josee's fourth birthday, the blades of a lawn mower severed her left leg. ASTAR appeals to children who are too young to know the consequences of playing in dangerous places. Josee joins ASTAR as a "safety ambassador" to warn all children to PLAYSAFE.

Santas Anonymous start campaign

Financial contributions are now being accepted for Drayton Valley's annual Santas Anonymous campaign.

Companies or individuals wishing to donate to this community project are asked to contact Wayne at 542-5346, Linda at 542-4509, Danny at 542-6446 or leave their donations downtown at Brendan New and Used.

Collection canisters and toy boxes will be placed around town next week. Only new toys will be accepted.

Organizers, who assisted 116 families last winter, are expecting to see that number climb to 150 this year.

Families who get assistance from Santa's Anonymous are supplied by social services, the district health nurse and friends. If you know a family in need, call one of the three phone numbers mentioned earlier in this story.

Santas Anonymous also wishes to thank the Royal Canadian Legion for giving up their hall on a bingo night, so the Christmas hampers can be assembled.

The Notebook

Cpl. Grant Glistner

This week I would like to discuss the area of failing to maintain equipment on a motor vehicle.

Section 55(1) of the Highway Traffic Act states, "The owner of a vehicle shall keep and maintain the vehicle and all equipment thereof in a condition of conformity at all times and any standards or specifications prescribed by the regulations and shall keep and maintain all equipment prescribed by this act or the regulations:

(a) in good working order, and
(b) properly attached to the vehicle, having regard to the purpose for which that equipment is intended."

No one would consider driving their car or truck without oil, coolant, or of course gasoline. But every day hundreds of county-area residents are more prone to headlight problems, and some nights it seems every second approaching car has a headlight missing.

To compensate for an inoperative low beam, some drivers simply flip on the high beams. This practice is very annoying and dangerous for all approaching vehicles. With the high beams, oncoming motorists are blinded; with a low beam oncoming motorists are uncertain of how far over the approaching vehicle is. Even if it is your right headlight that is out, the oncoming motorist may not be able to tell and might assume the headlights he sees is your right. Many vehicles have ended up in the ditch in these situations by overcompensating just to play it safe.

Of course other malfunctioning equipment can cause accidents with obvious violations such as no brake lights, and no signal lights — the most serious of all.

So if you have defective equipment on your car or truck, why not get it fixed soon. After all, it has to be done sometime.

Cigarettes stolen from several stores

Evansburg RCMP are investigating the possibility a recent break-in in Est-wistle is related to a string of thefts near Edmonton.

Sgt. Gary Kirwan with the Evansburg RCMP said they are still investigating a break-in at Kirk's Food store in Est-wistle last week.

About $5,000 in cigarettes, around 300 cartons, were taken from the store during the early morning theft. Thieves removed the glass from the door before entering the store. "It's very similar," said Kirwan about the robbery compared to the recent thefts in and around Edmonton. Since late August more than 100 convenience stores have been broken into and cigarettes taken. In one case a wholesaler lost more than $37,000 worth of cigarettes. Stores in Leduc, Devon and Stony Plain have also been broken into.

Dawson Creek seniors come down to bowl

By Edith Norquist

Joey Lund from Buck Creek was a recent visitor at the Drop-In Centre. She won first in whist.

Visitors from Dawson Creek were here recently to bowl with the local seniors at the Twilight Bowling lanes.

Upon leaving Dawson Creek they went to North Battleford, then to Fort Saskatchewan and then to Drayton Valley then back home. Following bowling the seniors played cards and played floor curling.

Get well wishes to Kay Mandriak who is a patient in the hospital.

On Nov. 3 nine tables were in play at the Drop-In Centre for crib.

High for the ladies was Jessie Bartlett with (P.S.) 726, low was Mary Bailey. High for the gent's was Ruth Smetstad and low was Helen Schipper.

On Nov. 6, 10 tables were in play at the centre for whist. High was Bertha Elliot and low was a tie between Frances Sims and Clara Omit. High for the men was Evelyn Jensen and low was Albert Martin.

The seniors are having a pot-luck supper tonight (Wednesday) at 6 p.m. Everyone welcome.

Buck Lake 'calendar girl' keeps dates straight

By Lorne Christensen

She's a calendar girl and she is enjoying it.

Buck Lake's Dorothy Willows is enjoying her work putting out calendars: her 1987 edition is her third.

"It's been out for about a month and it seems to be going over well," Willows says about the latest edition.

"It's fun," she adds about the work, pointing out she is finding it easier each year. "I'm enjoying it a lot more and I'm coping more with the selling and distribution," she explained.

For 1987, 2,200 of the calendars have been printed. Willows said. It's up 200 from the 1986 printing because of more demand.

"It's better to have a few extra," she added.

In addition to the local store sales Willows has also been busy sending the calendars in the mail. She has had orders from the United States, Ontario, Saskatchewan and British Columbia.

"I've mailed out about 100 so far," she said.

The rush is still yet to hit as Willows expects the Christmas season to bring even more orders in.

But while the calendars for 1987 are selling now, Willows is looking ahead to 1988.

She's already starting on the photos for the next calendar and says she'll try to get them "month by month."

"I'm pleased with how they (the 1987 calendars) turned out," she added.

Locally, the calendars are available at Valley Gift and Stationery and Lone Pine Western Wear in Drayton Valley. In Buck Lake at the Buck Lake Service and Supply and D&N Foods and in Alder Platts at Sunset Crafts and Lucky Dollar.

Province-wide competitions

Special Olympics teams win big

Drayton Valley's Special Olympics teams have picked up nine medals in just two meets so far this year.

At a swim meet in Red Deer late in October they captured two firsts, a second and a third.

Then on Nov. 1 in Camrose the bowling team rolled their way to a first, a second, two thirds and a trophy for best double score.

These are pretty impressive results for the clubs, which have only been practicing since returning from the summer off, says organizer Kristin Callander.

In fact, the teams have only been in existence for a year-and-a-half, and are progressing rapidly.

The floor hockey team has its first meet in December and is hoping to go to the national finals in Nova Scotia next March, says Callander.

But, as successful as the teams are, the organizers need "new board members and more community involvement," says Callander.

They can also use more team members.

Teams are open to everyone two-and-half-years old and up.

The younger participants don't compete against other teams, but are organized as "an integral part of getting the handicapped into community events and giving them a chance to enjoy

"recreational activities and success," says Callander.

Car pooling and other arrangements can be set up if needed and the cost to join is minimal, with reimbursement if the child stays with the program through its completion.

Besides swimming (pee wee and adult), floor hockey, and bowling teams, cross-country skiing and track teams are also offered.

Anyone interested in participating on the board or teams is asked to attend board meetings the first Monday of each month at the Beehive. The meetings get underway at 6 p.m.

The joy and satisfaction the various teams bring is highlighted by the camaraderie of the players, even after practice.

Floor hockey also fits into the competition scene, along with giving the players some extra work on fitness and recreation, important parts of the total program. Due to lack of hockey players they have to team up with players from Strathcona to compete.

The Special Olympics also has a bowling team competing in the Alberta-wide tournaments. The team has lost some members recently, though, as they advance in league play here in Drayton Valley.

Above, volunteers Rod and Darla instruct two members of the Special Olympics' pee wee swimmers on some of the finer points of cutting through the water.

Right, instructor Bob has the attention of the adult swimmers during their weekly practice for upcoming competitions.

Yellowhead Report

Opportunities in South America

By Joe Clark, MP
Agri-Team Canada is a new Alberta company of agricultural consultants. It was formed by Bob Francis, a Priddy rancher, with AgriTech Consulting Services Ltd., XL Food Systems Ltd. of Calgary and Acres International Ltd., and is looking for Canadian business overseas.

Prairie Microtech is an established Regina firm involved in feedlot management. It has begun to look overseas for new opportunities to sell computer software and expertise for feedlot management.

Neither company had ever sought markets in South America before — but both thought opportunities might exist.

So I arranged for them, and representatives of 28 other Canadian businesses, to accompany me on my September visit to Venezuela, Argentina and Uruguay.

Both these western companies found export or investment opportunities that will probably translate into more jobs and growth in Alberta and Saskatchewan. They demonstrate how important it is for our businesses to reach out in the world — and their experience proves there is an immense opportunity for partnership between Canadians and countries all over the globe.

In the past, Canadian foreign ministers did not travel with business delegations. I've changed that — both because I can help Canadian companies to secure contracts and contacts abroad, and because the presence of Canadian private-sector experts often helps me learn things I wouldn't know other wise.

Wherever possible, I make it a practice to get out of the capitals, and into the countryside, of the nations I'm visiting.

In Venezuela, we flew up to Porto Ordaz, which some call The Rhur Valley of South America and where development is made possible by the giant Orinoco Dam, in which Canadian companies play a major role.

In Argentina, we went to the Pampas to visit an Argentine cattle operation. (We met two Canadians who had arrived before us — a Red Angus bull and a Holstein, both now in the service of Argentina). Both Agri-Team and Prairie Microtech may bring business away from the visit.

In Uruguay, Canadians were looking at opportunities in fish processing, agriculture, and joint ventures involving technology transfer.

Other issues dominated my foreign policy agenda — fighting terrorism, stopping the drug trade, helping Contadora bring peace to Central America, launching the new GATT round of multilateral trade negotiations.

But while I was doing my work for Canada, Agri-Team and Prairie Microtech, other Canadian businesses were doing theirs. Working together, we are both building new links between Canada and South American countries with whom we share an exciting world.

Safety

CSA approved fuses advised

Are you confused by the fuses you use in your home?

Do you know the difference between a 'C' type, 'P' type or 'D' type fuse?

A C type is an ordinary zinc link fuse. P and D types are heat-sensitive fuses which will blow before the temperature exceeds 200 C. The D type fuse has an added feature to allow it to handle short term, high current in rushes caused by appliances such as air conditioners, refrigerators, freezers and dryers.

Although they are more expensive, CSA certified P and D fuses are recommended to give your home added protection from possible fire hazards. With the investment you have in your house and contents, the additional cost for the fuses is a small price to pay for the extra protection and peace of mind.

But there's more to it than this.

You must make sure all plug fuses are screwed in tightly and cartridge fuses snapped in snugly. A loose fuse can overheat, damage the fuse holder, resulting in an arcing between live current carrying parts and grounded metal parts such as the enclosure, and possible start a fire.

Your fusible panelboard should be checked every six months and all fuses reignited. If the fuses blow repeatedly, if lights start to flicker, or even if the panel enclosure feels too warm, something else may be wrong. That's the time to call in a qualified electrician

Hay auction a success

After selling more than 800 tons of hay at a value of just under $60,000, organizers of Alberta's first quality-related hay auction say it was well worth the effort.

"We're just delighted with the response," says Bjorn Berg, a regional forage specialist with Alberta Agriculture who helped the Lakeland Forage Association organize the Oct. 25 auction near Bonnyville.

"There are always a few changes that could be made but, for a first-time effort, it was a good success. The forage association was also pleased with the results."

The northeast Alberta auction was the first of its kind in the province, if not all of Canada, with each hay lot sold on the basis of a feed analysis.

Organized in what is considered a good hay year, the auction sold 806 tons of hay for $57,855 for an average value of $46.81 per ton. Broken down further this represents about 460 tons of first-cut hay which sold for an average of $53.50 per ton and about 350 tons of second-cut hay which went for an average of $63.50 per ton.

The going rate for hay before the auction was pegged at between $65 and $70 per ton for second-cut hay and $40 a ton for first-cut hay.

There were 42 lots of hay made up of large round bales and small square bales to be sold. Between 125 and 175 farmers attended the auction.

One of the objectives of the sale was to familiarize more farmers with feed test analysis. Prior to the auction Alberta Agriculture specialists conducted an on-site seminar explaining to farmers what the analysis means and how it can be incorporated into a feeding program.

Balancing act

It was a real balancing act as crews working on the new St. Anthony's Church lowered this beam into place. Work on the project is a little behind schedule but the job is expected to be finished by February.

Consumer's Corner

"Voice in the marketplace"

Consumer's Corner is back in circulation again, and we wish to take this opportunity to reintroduce our readers to the column and to the Consumer's Association.

The Consumer's Association of Canada in Alberta is a non-profit, non-governmental organization dedicated to consumer interests in Alberta. We use Consumer's Corner as a vehicle whereby CAC's information on consumer issues can be communicated to you, the Alberta consumer.

There is a growing need for consumer information in tough economic times. Concerned consumers can save money by becoming informed consumers. Previous Consumer's Corner columns offered helpful hints on everything from smart Christmas shopping techniques, to health foods, to how to investigate your credit rating.

A large portion of the information published in Consumer's Corner is taken from CAC's month publication Canadian Consumer. Membership in CAC ($25/year) brings you this monthly consumer aid.

An equally important part of CAC Alberta's promotional strategy is to inform you, through Consumer's Corner, that we want to hear your concerns. CAC is "your voice in the marketplace".

Through representations on boards and committees, through presentations to commissions, CAC takes your concerns to where they should be heard. Readers of Consumer's Corner are encouraged to contact the CAC office in Edmonton with their concerns: 304, 10138-101 St., T5J 0P1, 426-3270.

The objectives of Consumer's Corner are to continue to provide topical communication which encourages smart consumer strategies for tough economic times.

Hazardous Wastes Management

Special Report

Typical European Hazardous Waste Incinerator

This is the third and last report of a three part series on hazardous wastes management in Alberta. Barhead Leader/Swan Hills Grizzly Gazette publisher Al Blackmore recently returned from a worldwide symposium on hazardous waste management in Denmark. In his first report, Blackmore explained the unique method Alberta used to find a socially acceptable site to locate the special wastes facility in this province. In the second report, he compared Alberta's plans with other developed countries methods of disposing of hazardous wastes. In this final article on the subject, Blackmore will look at the safety of the Alberta special wastes program, compared with other countries, and will examine the collection and transportation plans for these special wastes. Also, a quick look at what this special wastes facility will mean to the average Albertan.

Safety Incorporated In Alberta's Special Wastes Plant

By Al Blackmore

How safe is this facility being built near Swan Hills? Are there going to be emissions from the stack that will cause long term health effects? Is there a danger of toxic materials running off into rivers and streams, infecting fish, and getting into drinking supplies? Should we fear these dangerous goods being transported along the main streets as they are passing through our towns? These are excellent questions that all Albertans need to know the answers to.

Safety

Dr. Kathryn Kelly, a toxicologist with Environmental Toxicology International Inc. of Seattle, Washington, has spent several years studying the effects that dioxins and dibenzofurans (commonly found in emissions from incineration facilities) have on human health.

Kelly's studies show no increase in the levels of cancer related cases in people who live or work near stacks from incinerators, although she admits very few studies have been made on emissions from waste incinerators. Even fewer studies have been conducted on hazardous waste incinerators during non-normal conditions (accidents or emergencies). Kelly pointed out there have been two recent studies which estimated the health effects of accidents at proposed hazardous waste facilities. Both these studies concluded that, at worst, sensitive members of the nearby population may experience some minor, reversible irritation, but that no long term health effects could be expected to occur.

There have been 23 known industrial incidents where hundreds of people have been exposed to high concentrations of dioxins. Perhaps the best known of these incidents is the chemical plant explosion in Seveso, Italy in 1976 that spread dioxin over a large area. According to Kelly, researchers have been expected to link any major human chronic health effects to this incident, although she is quick to point out that only ten years have passed, and that is not long enough to determine any long term effects.

Most European hazardous waste facilities are located very near residential areas. Kommunekemi, the Danish facility, is located in the industrial park of the town of Nyborg. A residential area is situated less than one mile away. Town officials said the only common complaint received by the residents is the smell of ammonia from the plant. Kommunekemi has been in operation, destroying 130,000 metric tonnes of Danish hazardous waste per year, since 1971. There is no evidence of any abnormal health effects on Nyborg residents.

In Swan Hills, testing of the air, surface water, ground water at various depths, plant life, and wildlife has been going on for almost two years now. This is to determine the normal levels of each category. Testing will continue on an ongoing basis during the life of the facility to determine if the special wastes plant has any effect on the environment.

Transportation

All Albertans could be affected by the program to transport hazardous goods through their communities on the way to Swan Hills. Is it safe? What about a traffic accident?

Chem Security, the private company which is responsible for the management of the Special Wastes Facility, has taken a lesson from the Danish system of collection and transportation. Denmark has an excellent rail system which is used extensively for hazardous waste movement. Since no rail line leads to Swan Hills, Chem Security has designed specially built containers similar to seaport containers. The hazardous goods will be secured in 45 gallon drums, placed into these containers which in turn will be loaded onto specially designed trucks for transportation.

A collection system will be set up using regional landfill facilities. In communities where the demand is not great, "milk runs" will be instituted. Local residents will be notified by advertisements that the special wastes collection service will be visiting that community on a certain day. Any hazardous products can be brought to the pick-up area.

Is the system foolproof? No one will assuredly make the claim that nothing can go wrong. But Chem Security officials, Alberta Special Waste Management personnel, and Environment people all claim Alberta has done everything humanly possible to make it as safe as can be.

Experts from around the world agree in fact many are planning to visit Alberta to learn from our experience. It is anticipated upwards of 3000 visitors will visit the Swan Hills site in 1987.

What will this facility mean to the average Albertan?

Regulations

Alberta Environment is determined to stop the misuse of lands by the dumping of hazardous goods and containers in unapproved places. Industry, agricultural, and individuals can expect to see rules tightened up regarding the disposal of special wastes. Proper on-site disposal will have to take place, or the shipping of these wastes to Swan Hills will be necessary.

Already, some regulations are in place to ensure a better environment. Until the Swan Hills facility is operational next summer, all chemical wastes must be stored under proper conditions. A network of over 300 service stations in Alberta has been set up for an oil collection service. Also, Alberta Environment has recently placed a series of advertisements asking Albertans to notify the department if they are aware of any abandoned chemical wastes dumps.

The government of Alberta will be assuming a regulatory role in the disposal of special wastes in this province. No longer will the simple unloading of special wastes in local landfill sites be acceptable.

Jumpin' Jack Flash on front Nov. 15-21

Jumpin' Jack Flash

Almost before you know it, you have fallen in love with Whoopi Goldberg's character, Terry Doolittle.

In only her second movie role, Goldberg captures the adventurous spirit inside all of us and puts it up on the big screen for each of us to identify with.

Terry Doolittle is a high-energy woman in a low-excitement job. She works at a computer console transferring funds for a large international bank.

Not to be overcome with boredom, she chats (via the computer network) with other bank employees worldwide.

One day she receives a call for help on her screen, from someone calling himself Jumpin' Jack Flash, claiming to be a British spy trapped behind the Iron Curtain and, just for fun, she decides to play along.

The laughs just about never stop, as Terry is drawn deeper and deeper into the spy game trying to get Jack the help he desperately needs. Terry ends up getting involved in international espionage, breaking and entering and phone booth-napping.

Whoopi Goldberg has more than shown she can take what at first looks like a one-dimensional character or story line and turn it into her own brand of hilarious fun, that is a pleasure to watch.

This is also the directional debut of Penny Marshall, who is best remembered as Laverne

Shirley. If this is her first fort, we can expect great things from her in the future.

Christmas Seal campaign sets million-dollar goal

The Alberta Lung Association's 48th Christmas Seal Campaign officially began Nov. 1 and runs until Jan. 31.

This year's fund-raising goal for the annual campaign has been set at $1,000,000, an increase of $125,000 over last year.

Co-chairpersons of the campaign are Mark Messier of the Edmonton Oilers and Paul Reinhart of the Calgary Flames. The 1986 Christmas Seal Child is James Hooper, a two-year-old victim of lung disease.

"Public awareness of the ALA is high and that results in a great demand for our programs in the areas of community services, health education, research, and professional development," says Alf Truant, president of the

ALA. "With the generous support of Albertans we were able to exceed last year's financial objective; we're hoping to do the same this year as once again we ask Albertans to join us in the fight against lung disease by donating to Christmas Seals."

Last year Christmas Seal donations totalled $960,789.

Christmas Seal Child

James Hooper receives treatment at the Pediatric Pulmonary Clinic in Edmonton, located at the University of Alberta. The clinic, funded by the ALA, was established to provide care to children with serious lung disease and is just one of the many services and programs supported by Christmas Seal donations.

Other areas benefiting from Christmas Seals include research, school educational programs, professional development through medical scholarships, bursaries and grants and smoking cessation programs.

Donations to the Christmas Seal Campaign can be made by mail or in person to: The Alberta Lung Association, 10618-124 St., Edmonton, AB T5N 3X4 or by contacting your local Christmas Seal committee.

Alder Flats

Parker and Weber chaperone youth tour group

By Bernice Johnson
386-3863

Seven youths from the International Youth For Peace and Justice tour, ranging in age from 13 to 19, were in Alder Flats Oct. 27.

The youth, from war torn countries, spent the morning with the high school students in the classroom and gave their presentation at 1 p.m. in the gymnasium to the students and community members.

They spoke about their views to encourage young people to analyze and understand the roots of war, conflict and poverty and to encourage ideas on alternative solutions to violence and poverty.

They were in groups of seven, with two counsellor/chaperones and have toured Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Two of the groups visited 16 farm communities and cities in Alberta.

The tour was funded in part by various organizations and each community visited had to raise a financial contribution of $500/day the tour was in their community. The Alder Flats and Buck Lake agencies each donated $250.

The tour participants arrived in Alder Flats Oct. 26 and were treated to a warmer roast and were billeted in various homes in the two communities.

Counsellor/chaperones for the Alder Flats group were Jeanine Parker and Muriel Weber. They flew to Montreal Oct. 12 for a week of programming before the students arrived. They will be travelling with this tour until Nov. 8. Local chairpersons were Dorothy Willows and Rebecca Fitzgerald.

Dale Hoffin videotaped the tour activities and are available for sale. Call 386-2344 for more information.

The Alder Flats-Buck Lake hockey and skating programs will begin some time in November, starting at the Alder Flats curling rink. The curling rink will be closed for hockey and skating Nov. 22 to 30 due to a curling clinic.

This year, the hockey association must register with the Minor Hockey Association and each team must have insurance. Therefore, the 1986-87 season registration must take place now. The insurance will cover practices, out-of-town games and home games. No player will be allowed on the ice if dues are not paid.

The learn-to-skate program will be taught by Vicki Dunn Tuesday nights. She will need other helpers.

Registration forms for hockey and skating will go out through the school. Please give or send money and registration forms to the

Two new layers of pavement were laid at the west entrance to Buck Lake at the end of October. The old hard top was full of holes even after being patched this summer.

The stop signs at the intersection of highways 13 and 22 have been changed so that traffic on Highway 13 must stop.

A capacity crowd attended the Halloween dance at the Buck Lake Hall Nov. 1. The organizers were Alder Flats-Buck Lake Hockey Association, c/o Mary Larson, Box 184, Alder Flats. Make cheques payable to the Alder Flats Ag Society.

Hockey coaches are still needed and volunteers would be appreciated. Also, a volunteer is needed for the concession. If there is no volunteer, parents of the figure skaters will be asked what they want to do. If there is no interest, the concession will have to be closed down.

For further information contact Ross Larson at 388-2322.

Hunting season

Wild flavor of meat is strong during mating season

By Joan Heath
Doesn't it seem like summer just left — especially with the Indian summer we were so lucky to have a few weeks ago?

But we know better because hunting season is here again. I often hear comments like "My family won't eat wild meat because of that wild taste."

Meat from young animals has a milder flavor than that from older, more active animals. The 'wild' flavor of meat is particularly strong during mating season. There are several things you can do if you find the wild flavor unappealing:

— Avoid bagging male animals during mating season: deer — last week in November and first week in December; elk, antelope — last week in September; moose, caribou — first two weeks in October.

— Most of the wild flavor is found in the outside crust of dried meat and fat. Trim this away before cooking.

— If the meat is extremely strong, you may want to have it made into sausage.

Game birds have fine-grained, full-flavored meat with very little fat. The wild flavor comes from the oil in the skin of all water birds. You may want to remove the skin from the bird. However, you will then need to add extra fat during cooking or the meat will be quite dry.

If you want to roast a bird, leave the skin on. Soak it in a brine of one teaspoon salt to a quart of cold water for about 10 hours. This will get rid of the wild flavor. It's best to soak the bird before freezing rather than after thawing. Try to cook or freeze game birds when they are fresh because the oily flesh quickly becomes rancid. Cooking wild game

Game meat is dark in color, lean and dry. Wild animals are active and accumulate less fat than domestic animals. Therefore, this makes wild meat an excellent choice for someone on a low fat diet.

Plot fees

The cost of dying is going up in the county of Parkland.

With new plot fees proposed at a recent county council meeting, councillors decided to adhere to recommendations from Agricultural and Rural Life Advisory Committee to increase fees 100 per cent.

Although county cemetery plot fees were thought to have been going for $50 each and the committee had made an initial suggestion of $80, plots were actually going for $25. That led

When cooking roasts or steaks, remove any dried fat and add beef or pork fat during cooking, if desired. Remember to closely follow cooking times because the dark color of game makes it difficult to tell when it's fully cooked.

When roasting game meat, expect to lose about 25 per cent of the weight due to shrinkage. Although there will be some drippings, there's usually not enough to make a good gravy. Plan to have beef bouillon or gravy mix on hand.

Storing game meat

Wild game should be stored with the same care as other fresh meat. If refrigerated, game birds and ground meat should be used within one or two days; steaks and chops within three to five days. If frozen, big game can be frozen for eight to 12 months. Game birds can be frozen for six months.

You may decide to preserve some of your wild meat. Remember, meats have very little acid so they must be canned using a pressure canner to prevent the growth of a deadly organism known as botulism.

If you don't have a pressure canner, feel free to borrow one from our office; just call ahead to 542-5965. At the same time, pick up (or have us mail out) a copy of the free booklet, The Care and Cooking of Alberta Wild Game. It contains further information on wild meat as well as a variety of wild game recipes for those who handle and/or prepare wild meat.

taking more of the caretaker's time."

The new fees affect about seven or eight of the cemeteries in Parkland that are operated by the county.

Cost of dying going up in county committee member George Sewell to revise the fee hike and set the new plot price at $50.

Caretakers at county cemeteries will also get more. They'll now be paid $30 per burial in addition to the existing $200 basic yearly honorarium.

The increase comes from a demand for improved landscaping, Sewell told council.

"The people who are buying the plots are demanding more landscaping. It's

FINANCING ALBERTA BUSINESS

The Alberta Opportunity Company provides financial and counselling assistance to small business enterprises.

Happy Trails To Success.

In 1976, Gerald Bond decided that to compete successfully in the highly competitive tourism business, he needed to build a lodge on his Black Cat Guest Ranch just north of Hinton. Gerald Bond came to AOC for financing, and built the lodge. Today, it hosts guests from all over the world! All year-round.

Its High Foothills location in Solomon Valley is ideal for trail-riding. And come winter, its 30 kilometers of groomed trails attract cross-country skiers.

Comment

By Bill Ingler

While county of Leduc officials know how many people voted in the recent election, they really don't have any idea of total numbers eligible to cast ballots.

The county election system ran smoothly during the Oct. 20 vote, with counting completed and telephoned to the county office by just 9:15 p.m., a strong performance for any municipality.

The problem is county administrators can only estimate the total number of eligible voters, leaving a huge unknown for any future election.

A total of 2,333 people voted in 1986 while 2,025 cast ballots in 1980 and 2,811 expressed their political opinions in 1983.

County turnout may have represented 50 per cent of the total eligible or just 20 per cent. An accurate answer will never be known for certain.

The same unanswered questions could also haunt the county if either annexation or a new municipal district reduce the population base.

Taking stock of taxes and keeping tabs on ratepayers is easy, but not everyone who lives on the land pays taxes. Wives, grown children or boarders can each cast a ballot and need to be identified.

Knowing total numbers would not only show what percentage of those eligible to vote cast ballots but could also help candidates campaign in the next election.

In the next several years, a careful census could also provide county councillors with ammunition for presentation to the Local Authorities Board, which might help their case against annexation.

A demonstration that the county would suffer drastic consequences and a serious loss of population might be a handy tool. If county politicians don't have basic figures at their fingertips they might not appear to care about the affected areas.

A census costs money but the broader ramifications for county residents would make the process worthwhile.

Programs in a number of departments could be effectively directed if council and administration had a better idea how many people lived in the county.

Council must break down and spend money to better understand its own backyard.

Fireplaces

Wood burn warning

This is the time of year when people start thinking about using their fireplaces.

Environment Minister Ken Kowalski warns Albertans, however, to be careful about the types of wood they burn.

"If you're looking for scrap wood to use in your fireplace," he explained, "be suspicious of any wood that may have been treated with wood preservative chemicals. These wood products should not be used in fireplaces, stoves or as recreational firewood."

Most wooden railway ties, utility poles, outdoor storage pallets, and commercial fence posts have been treated with wood preservatives. Creosote and pentachlorophenol (PCP) are the two preservatives most commonly used to treat these items.

Another compound, chromated copper arsenate (CCA), is often used to preserve wood used in sun decks, wooden basements and other construction materials.

Burning creosote creates odor and smoke problems, while burning PCP may produce toxic bi-products. The ash from CCA treated wood contains high concentrations of potentially hazardous compounds; these are present in very low concentrations within the treated wood itself. Wood treated with any wood preservatives, when burned, will produce chemicals that should not be released in enclosed living spaces. Over time, these could present a health hazard.

Wood treated with creosote or PCP can usually be identified by a stained or oily appearance and a distinct chemical odor. Wood treated with CCA does not have any odor, but does have a stained appearance.

Kowalski also reminded people who have installed treated wooden basements or decks over the summer, to dispose of scrap pieces with regular household trash or take them to a sanitary landfill.

elderly or anyone unable to do their own shovelling, said organizer Ron Zinck.

The service is free of charge, but small donations to the Beehive will be accepted. Despite transportation problems the Beehive is willing to travel short distances out of town.

Lack of interest for dancing lessons

There'll be no dancing in the streets this year — at least, not Ukrainian dancing. An attempt to start local Ukrainian dance lessons has been halted due to lack of interest, reports lesson organizer Donna Tkachuk.

"We got the lessons organized a bit late for this year and many people already have other things on the go," she said.

But the lessons should be offered again next year, only earlier, she said.

"We've decided to let it go for this year and try a bit earlier next year to see if we get a better response," she said.
